The #1 reason for using Black Seed Bitters as part of your daily diet is: to prevent and relieve autointoxification. Constipation and poor bowel movement (whereas fecal material has not been properly eliminated) can lead to the absorption of toxins into the body's bloodstream. This absorption of toxins from within the body's digestive system is a form of self-poisoning or autointoxification. The digestive system is connected to the circulatory and lymphatic systems, and once the toxins settle into the body's tissue, many diseases including autoimmune disorders occur. Some of the disorders include headaches, brain fog, depression, obesity, diverticulitis, PMS, bad breath, indigestion, gas, bloating, arthritis, body odor, and even colon cancer. It has also been reported that women who are constipated are four times more likely to develop breast cancer.

Constipation is generally caused by a combination of factors.

- Poor Diet: too much coffee, refined sugar, starch, alcohol, and processed foods; not enough essential fatty acids found in flaxseed oil, borage and fish oils needed for lubrication of the intestinal system.
- Lack of Exercise: exercise stimulates lymphatic flow, which can help create normal peristalsis. This produces three bowel movements daily.
- Medications: many medications cause constipation.
- Not Enough Fluid Intake: Lack of fluids (especially water) can cause dehydration, which leads to constipation.
- Lack of Time: Many of us do not create the time to eliminate regularly.
