What is Live & Dried Blood Cell Analysis?

It is an observation of live and dried blood as a window into your health. It helps to show the effects of nutrition on your cells. You will learn the importance of nutritional lifestyle changes that will help improve the health of your client and prevent sickness and disease. There are 4 prevalent conditions of the blood that lead to bad health. This course will assist healthcare professionals to help facilitate change in their client through microscopic examination of their blood via health assessments, nutrition and education.
